PREFACE.

The Committee, appointed by Governor Laffoon, was called together for the first time on December 9, 1933. Since then it has held one public hearing and a half-dozen or so formal Committee sessions, several of which lasted through parts of two days and during part of the intervening night. There was not a day during the whole time (except perhaps Christmas day) when some member of the Committee was not engaged in work upon one or more of the different aspects of the problem before it.

In view of the importance of the subject, of the large volume of reports and bills from other States which were studied and of the peculiar, constitutional difficulty in Kentucky, the time consumed was, perhaps, too short for as thorough and careful study and drafting as would have been desirable. But whatever imperfections may be found in the two bills submitted, the reports represent the considered conclusions of those who have signed them.

I have written this brief preface in order to say on behalf of the other members of the Committee what they might hesitate to say for themselves. They have faithfully attended all called meetings of the Committee, despite the distance required to be travelled by several of them. They have given the closest attention to their task and all of them, whether of the minority or the majority, have been actuated by a common purpose to promote the welfare and prosperity of Kentucky. No difference of opinion as to methods has been allowed to distract their attention from that ultimate objective.

LAFON ALLEN, Chairman.

Report of the Kentucky Liquor Control Committee.

*To the Governor and
The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:*

Your Committee was charged with the duty of studying the conditions resulting from the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and of recommending legislation to meet those conditions.

If the Kentucky Constitution had not prohibited the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, the task of the Committee would have been comparatively simple. Doubtless there would have been differences of opinion as to the general plan to be followed, as well as to details under the plan adopted. A choice would have been necessary between the licensing plan and the state monopoly plan, that is to say, between the plan of licensing private persons or companies to sell liquor, under governmental supervision, regulation and taxation, and the plan of selling through government stores. But the difficulty, if any, would have arisen merely from differences of opinion as to policy.

But, in view of the [“]Seventh Amendment of the Kentucky Constitution, prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, except for certain, limited purposes, your Committee was confronted, not merely with a question of legislative policy, but with a question of legislative power. Unless the Seventh Amendment was to be ignored or slighted in some degree, the only legislation that could be recommended was such as was genuinely intended and designed to enforce the constitutional condemnation of the sale of liquor for beverage purposes.

If this course were followed, there was little or nothing for your Committee to do. There was already on the statute book an enforcement act (the Rash-Gullion Act, adopted March 22, 1922) and, at most, the Committee's task would have been to recommend changes in that Act, intended to make it more effective.

But your Committee has conceived that it was not appointed for any such limited and unpractical purpose. Kentucky had had more than a decade of experience, not only under the Rash-Gullion Act, but under the Volstead Act, from which it had learned that absolute prohibition, except in restricted areas and when supported by a dominant public opinion, was not an effective method of dealing with the liquor problem, but, on the contrary, brought in its train evils greater, even, than those which it was intended to remove. That this was the prevailing opinion in Kentucky seemed to be sufficiently indicated by the majority of more than 152,000 given for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment in the election of November, 1933.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the Rash-Gullion Act has not been enforced in the urban centers of the state. Indictments were difficult to get and convictions almost impossible. Consequently, the state was infested with bootleggers and like gentry and suffered all the social ills and fiscal losses that are the inevitable accompaniment of a tolerated, outlaw trade. The results were corruption and crime, no revenue, no control, disrespect for law and general demoralization. The only competition with the bootlegger was supplied by the combination of the easy doctor and the easy druggist, who, in truth, were of the same genus.

Your Committee was required to make a choice. If it should recommend the retention of the Rash-Gullion Act or some variation of it intended to enforce, rigidly and literally, the Seventh Amendment, it would merely invite a repetition of the old failure, thus leaving society a prey to the old evils. It is a grave responsibility to incur these certain calamities for the sake of a futile devotion to a futile decree.

Your Committee was unwilling to assume that responsibility. It recognized as a fact that there is widespread and insistent demand for liquor for beverage purposes. It is to supply this demand that the bootlegger exists and it is the fabulous profits of that trade that have enabled him to purchase the protection that is so indispensable to him and so injurious to society. For the corruption thus begun does not stop where it begins, but creeps like a canker until its moral corrosion is felt in every part and we have not merely the bootlegger, but the racketeer, the "high-jacker," the gunman, the gangster and all the crew of mercenary killers and kidnappers, recruited, commanded and paid by the "big shots" of this illicit traffic.

evils
Facing this situation, your Committee has been unwilling not to suggest some method of mitigating these evils, so far as it was possible to do so by law. We are willing to incur the accusation of infidelity to the letter of the Seventh Amendment in order to accomplish, in part at least, the underlying purpose of that Amendment, which was to prevent intemperance in the use of alcoholic beverages.

Temperance must, in the nature of things, be chiefly the product of precept and example. So far as the law is concerned, there is only one way, in the present situation in Kentucky, in which it can help and that is by removing those inducements to excessive drinking which attend secret and illicit drinking. To do this it is necessary to bring the supply of liquor out into the daylight, where it can be properly restricted and watched and policed and taxed. — All excessive drinking cannot be prevented in this, or in any other, manner. But the greatest temptation to it can be thus removed, the opportunities for it can be diminished and the mercenary encouragement of it can be measurably prevented.

Your Committee was unanimously of the opinion that something of this kind should be done, but was divided as to the best method of doing it. It was in agreement as to the impossibility of recommending the establishment of government stores in view of the Seventh Amendment, even though it might be willing to make such a recommendation in other circumstances. But it could not agree unanimously upon the method of bringing the beverage liquor trade into the open, where it might be controlled and taxed.

The division in the Committee came about in this way. At one of its early meetings it had agreed to eliminate the requirement of a physician's prescription for a retail sale. This was prompted partly by a desire to release the medical fraternity from the constant pressure for prescriptions as a means of obtaining liquor for beverage purposes. But it was done chiefly to divert the flow of beverage liquor from the secret, subterranean channels, controlled by the bootlegger, into open channels which could be controlled by government, in the interest of moderation and public revenue. Indeed, if the requirement of a prescription had not been eliminated, it is difficult to see how any improvement of the present situation could have been brought about, except the slight amelioration of increasing the amount that could be prescribed by a physician at one time.

Even after the elimination of the prescription, it was urged by some members of the Committee that, out of respect for the Seventh Amendment, all retail sales should be required to be made, ostensibly, for medicinal purposes and that druggists' permits should still be limited to sales for those purposes. Under such a system, the purchaser must, of course, be the sole judge of his medicinal needs.

Alternative to Seventh Amendment as better way to
evil -

It is a matter of record that sales of liquor on prescription in Kentucky averaged annually about 32,000 gallons during 1931 and 1932. It has been estimated that, during the same years, the average annual sales by moonshiners and bootleggers in Kentucky was between 500,000 and 600,000 gallons. Even if the druggists, released from the requirement of prescriptions, should capture only one-half of this illicit business, they would be selling ten or eleven times as much liquor as they did formerly. It has never been asserted that prescription sales were not sufficient to take care of truly medicinal needs, so that, if the sales by druggists should rise to the figure suggested above (say, a minimum of 332,000 gallons annually), it would be clear that at least 300,000 of these gallons had been purchased for beverage purposes. To represent that a system which produced such a result had been adopted to prevent the sale of liquor for beverage purposes, in obedience to the Seventh Amendment, was a pretense which a majority of the Committee were unwilling to make, if there was some other way in which the desired result could be brought about.

Another way was suggested, which had been outlined by Dr. Black, a member of the Committee, in an article which appeared in the January number of the "Kentucky Law Journal," under the title, "Is an Immediate Liquor Program for Kentucky Within the Scope of Constitutional Possibilities?"

This plan is based upon certain legal principles and concepts which need not be explained at length. The gist of it is that, since the Seventh Amendment fixes no penalties for its violation, it requires legislation for its enforcement; that in exercising the police power of the state for this purpose, the General Assembly is at liberty to determine how far it shall be exercised; that, consequently, it may select the practices which are to be penalized, thus allowing other practices to go unpunished; and that it may tax what is unlawful, without authorizing or approving it.

Within these principles it is possible, as the majority of the Committee think, to build up a scheme of taxation and control of retail sales, which makes no pretense of coming within the "medicinal purpose" exception, to which no valid, constitutional objection can be made and which offers an opportunity for a more flexible, and therefor a more effective, control of the retail trade in liquor.

The bill tendered herewith as part of the Committee's report is based upon this plan. It taxes not only the manufacture of distilled spirits, but also the sale of them, both at wholesale and at retail. On the retail trade particularly, it employs the power of taxation, not merely to raise revenue, but also, and primarily, to restrict the trade in the interest of social welfare. It condemns those practices which are most injurious to such welfare and fixes penalties heavy enough to deter offenses, but not so heavy as to prevent convictions.

This condemnation and these penalties cover many forms of sale, according to persons, places, times and other circumstances; but retail sales which do not come under this condemnation and which are made in sealed containers for off-premises consumption, in connection with some other, bona fide and well established business, are not penalized, although all of them are taxed. The result is that such retail sales, to proper persons and at proper times and places, may be made with impunity. In order to restrict the number of places at which such sales are made and to insure that they shall be made only by trustworthy and responsible persons, a tax is laid upon the business large enough to exclude the possibility of its being undertaken by irresponsible and unreliable persons.

There is, perhaps, one feature of the Committee's bill which should be explained more fully. One cause of excessive drinking under prohibition is the impossibility, or perhaps we should say, the difficulty, of having liquor served with meals in hotels, restaurants and clubs. If drinking is to be done at all, the most propitious time to do it is with the evening meal. Wine with dinner or a cocktail or highball just before dinner are things which a great many people like to have and have had throughout national prohibition. At home, they could have them in a normal manner, but when they dined at a club or hotel or restaurant they were forced, unless they did without, either to drink indecorously and uncomfortably in a hotel bed-room or to bring the liquor with them, either from their homes or from a neighboring drug store.

Thus we had the unedifying spectacle of the bulging hip pocket, of the pint under the chair or under the tablecloth, of the arrival of the innocent "set-ups," of the more or less surreptitious production of the bottle from its imperfect concealment and the unscientific concoction of the drinks. And when the time for departure came, everybody was asked to "have another," in order to save the trouble of taking the bottle away. Thus it was that what would have been a pleasant and congenial gathering, if drinks could have been ordered from and served openly by the hotel itself, frequently became a noisy or even rowdy "party."

The Committee has endeavored to discourage bed room drinking and to restore dining room drinking to its former respectability by lifting the penalties for on-premises sales in bona fide hotels, restaurants and clubs, upon the fulfillment of certain conditions intended to insure moderation and decorum. The method of limiting the number and guaranteeing the respectability of the places which might claim this immunity is the same as that adopted in the case of package sales, that is, by a tax heavy enough to keep out irresponsible and unreliable institutions.

It seems to your Committee that enough has been said in explanation and justification of its proposal. We recommend the adoption of those proposals, either in the form found in the bill attached hereto or with such changes as the General Assembly may deem wise.

The plan proposed is intended only as an emergency measure. The Committee has not attempted to recommend a permanent plan, such as might be adopted upon the repeal of the Seventh Amendment, for the following reasons:

(a) Because the time was too short to permit the preparation of both plans, with the study and care that the subject deserves, in time to give the present General Assembly an opportunity to consider its recommendations deliberately.

(b) Because there was an obvious advantage in watching the results of liquor control experiments during the next two years, not only in Kentucky, but in other States, before undertaking to draft a permanent plan which could not go into effect until the end of that time.

(c) Because it was thought unlikely that the present General Assembly would take the unusual course of enacting a law, the operation of which must be conditioned on a contingency which could not possibly happen for almost two years and might conceivably not happen at all.

The Committee does, however, strongly recommend that provision be made by the General Assembly for a careful and deliberate study of this whole subject during the interval between its adjournment and the convening of the succeeding General Assembly, to the end that the latter may have the benefit of that study in enacting such laws as may be required by the repeal of the Seventh Amendment, if that should occur. Any suggestion as to the manner of selecting a committee to make this study is outside of our province, but we take the liberty of pointing out the advantage of having on such a committee persons who would probably be members of the General Assembly of 1936 so that the Committee would have spokesmen on the floor of both houses.

The Committee recommends that the present General Assembly propose the repeal of the Seventh Amendment of the Kentucky Constitution, in order that such repeal may be made effective in November, 1935. Kentucky gave a majority of over 152,000 in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and, while it is true that a vote against nation-wide prohibition is not necessarily a vote against state-wide prohibition, yet that large majority seems a certain indication of a prevalent public opinion that absolute prohibition, when applied to so large an area, is not an effective method of promoting temperance. Certainly it is of the utmost importance to have, as promptly as possible, a decision of that question by popular vote.

The Committee also strongly recommends a repeal of the Act of March 19, 1926 (Chapt. 165, Acts of 1926; sects. 4214b-1 to 10, Carroll's Kentucky Statutes, 1930). This levies a tax of fifty cents a pint to be paid by druggists on retail sales of distilled spirits, which is, of course, passed on to the consumer. It has the effect of encouraging bootlegging, not only by giving the bootlegger an advantage over the druggist in the retail price, but also by encouraging unscrupulous druggists to make unrecorded purchases from bootleggers, upon which no tax is paid. It should be repealed.

It is further recommended that the repeal proposal include the restoration and reinstatement in the Constitution of Kentucky of the local option provision now contained in Section 61 thereof.

It is recommended that Sections 2554a-1 to 2554a-47, inclusive, Chapter 81, of Carroll's Kentucky Statutes of 1930, being an Act of March 22, 1922, known as the Rash-Gullion Act, be repealed in its entirety and that a new enforcement act or acts be adopted, whether it be the bill tendered herewith or some other measure.

The bill tendered by the Committee is addressed almost altogether to the regulation of retail sales and the consumption of intoxicating liquors, which the Committee has thought presented the only serious problems. It, however, begs to call attention to the fact that the repeal of the Rash-Gullion Act in its entirety may leave some gaps in the law as to manufacturers, warehousemen, wholesalers, etc., which should be filled. The Act of September 26, 1933 (Acts, Special Session 1933, Chapt. 4) deals with this subject but covers only manufacture and sales at wholesale and this should be enlarged so as to provide for the issuance of purchase permits to blenders, rectifiers and wholesalers and restricting sales to holders of such permits and to retailers holding license tax receipts as provided in the Committee's bill. Some of these permits were formerly issued by the National Government but went out with the Eighteenth Amendment.

Your Committee has assumed from the beginning that the principle of local control of the liquor traffic should be continued and it has accordingly recommended that the General Assembly, in submitting the question of repeal of the Seventh Amendment, should expressly preserve the local option provision found in Section 61 of the Constitution. It seem to be the general professional opinion that Section 61 was not repealed by the Seventh Amendment and that consequently the laws adopted for the enforcement of that Section will again become operative upon the repeal of that Amendment. Your Committee, accordingly, has not placed any local option provisions in the bill attached to this report. It recommends, however, that, if any doubt should be entertained upon this legal question, the existing local option laws be re-enacted.

The bill tendered by the Committee does, however, provide that nothing therein shall be construed as affecting local control, whether by local option elections, by taxation or by adopting more stringent regulations than are provided by state law.

Beer and Wines.

The Committee makes no special recommendations as to the regulation and taxation of the manufacture or sale of wines and beers, since this subject is covered by the Act of September 26, 1933 (Acts, Special Session, 1933, Chapt. 5).

Conclusion.

The Committee has not undertaken to draft a complete liquor code. It has addressed itself to what it considered the central problem, that is, the consumption of liquor for beverage purposes. It is here that the social evils arise and it is here that we have attempted to apply the remedies. We respectfully submit that the control of drinking cannot be successfully attained through a plan to control the taking of medicine. We have made no attempt to disguise our purpose to regulate and control beverage liquor. We have attacked that problem directly. We believe that the measures which we have proposed will go far toward its solution and that they will "stand up" as against constitutional objections.

We have not overlooked the subject of public revenue. The principal source of that revenue is through taxes upon manufacture, determined by the quantity manufactured. This subject has been dealt with in full in the two (Acts of September 26, 1933, Special Session, 1933, Chaps. 4 and 5). So far as distilled spirits are concerned, a tax of two cents per gallon was laid upon all manufacturers after the effective date of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. We accept this as a declaration by the General Assembly of the policy of the State upon this subject. The Minority Bill, tendered with the Minority Report, levies not only this tax but also a tax of ten cents a gallon on the withdrawal of distilled spirits from warehouses. While we cannot claim any special knowledge on this subject, we are inclined to think that this tax is much too high. Undoubtedly it would produce a much larger revenue but the tax will be passed on to the consumer and, we fear, will so increase the price of retail liquor as to bring the bootlegger again into the field. We urge that this consideration be always kept in mind in fixing these taxes.

It is true that the Committee has included in its bill moderate license taxes for manufacturers and wholesale distributors but these were adopted to aid in the regulation of the traffic rather than for purposes of revenue, since it is obvious that the revenue thus produced will be comparatively small.

Respectfully submitted,

Minority Report of the Kentucky Liquor Control Committee.

*To the Governor and
The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:*

We, the undersigned Elwood Hamilton and Selden Y. Trimble, a minority of the Liquor Control Committee, heretofore appointed by the Governor, while regretting disagreement with the majority of the Committee, feel impelled to submit this, our minority report.

His Excellency, the Governor, in his letter of appointment, stated:

“Under our State Constitution, I am of the opinion there can be no manufacture, sale or transportation of liquors within the State except for medicinal, scientific and mechanical purposes.”

We concur in the Governor's statement.

Section 226(a) of the State Constitution may be repealed by the people of this Commonwealth, but, until that is done, its provisions bind the General Assembly and the Judiciary. No branch of the Government can legally disregard or ignore it.

“If the provisions of the Constitution be not upheld when they pinch as well as when they comfort, they may as well be abandoned.” Observance of Section 226(a) may be inconvenient, but its provisions are mandatory.

Mr. Trimble favored the re-enactment of the “Rash-Gullion Act” omitting references to the National Prohibition Act, and mitigating the penalties therein defined for its violation but, in a spirit of conciliation, joins Mr. Hamilton in the recommendation of the passage of the Bill submitted with this report. Mr. Hamilton favored the repeal of the Rash-Gullion Act. Mr. Trimble also opposes the repeal of the Seventh Amendment to the Kentucky Constitution, but recommends the submission of a repeal amendment with local option restored.

Mr. Hamilton recommends the submission and the repeal of the Seventh Amendment with local option restored.

The nature of the liquor traffic is so peculiar, its pursuit so nearly universal, its abuses so numerous and flagrant, its evils so pronounced and far-reaching, that its regulation and control have occupied the attention of mankind for almost four centuries, the first regulatory act being passed by the British Parliament in 1552. Prohibition came into existence due to the inefficiency of regulatory and license legislation to remove and prevent the evils of the traffic. Experience has shown that prohibition does not lessen the evils of the liquor traffic and the people must again turn to regulation or unbridled license; the latter is unthinkable.

The evils accompanying the undue use of alcoholic beverages may not be cured or prevented by legislation; only righteous education and individual self-control will prevent them. Legislation, however, may mitigate them and should be for the benefit of society, not in the interest of those who pursue the traffic. Temperance should be promoted wherever possible by removing the temptation to over-indulgence. The use of beverages, such as beer and wine of lesser alcoholic content, than ardent spirits should be encouraged. To this end, light wines and beer should be defined as non-intoxicating.

Intoxication is a word of very broad meaning. To some it means being under the influence of an intoxicant to such an extent as to render one helpless, while to others it means being only slightly under such influence.

Section 226(a) of the Constitution prohibits "intoxicating liquors." The phrase is not further defined; the Legislature has the power to define it within the limits of the use of the phrase as commonly understood.

It may be said to be "liquor" which contains such proportion of alcohol that it will produce intoxication when imbibed in such quantities as it is practically possible for a man to drink.

We believe within this definition, the Legislature has the power to exclude light wines and beer from Section 226(a) of the Constitution.

It lies within the police power of the State to prohibit the sale of non-intoxicating beverages which contain alcohol. It follows that the Legislature may regulate the traffic in such beverages and to that end may impose license taxes on the manufacture and sale of such beverages and may prohibit the sale thereof except by persons authorized under the law to deal and traffic therein.

In order that the State may first regulate and control the manufacture and sale of all alcoholic liquors and second, may collect all taxes due or imposed by the State on them, we are herewith making certain recommendations to the Legislature which are fully set forth in a bill attached to this report, and summarized as follows:

1. It is proposed to classify alcoholic beverages into two classes, intoxicating and non-intoxicating.

(a) Beer containing four percent or less of alcohol by weight is defined as non-intoxicating.

(b) Vinous liquor containing 14 percent of alcohol by weight or less is defined as non-intoxicating.

(c) All other spirituous, vinous and malt liquors fit for human consumption are defined as "unlawful" or "intoxicating" liquors.

2. It is proposed to establish permanent liquor control boards.

(a) A state board designated "Kentucky Liquor Control Board" composed of the Attorney General, Chairman of the State Tax Commission, Ex Officio Members, and one member appointed by the Governor who receives an annual salary of $4,800.00.

(b) A county board designated "County Liquor Control Board" composed of the County Attorney, the Sheriff and County Judge.

(c) A city board designated "City Liquor Control Board" composed of the Mayor, Director of Law and the Director of Safety in cities of first class and the Mayor, City Attorney and Chief of Police in cities of all other classes.

3. It is proposed that the following permits shall be issued:

(1) Brewer's permit; (2) wholesaler's permit; (3) permit to sell wine and beer at retail to be consumed on the premises; (4) permit to sell wine and beer at retail, not to be consumed on the premises; (5) distiller's permit; (6) druggist's permit; (7) rectifier's permit; (8) special permit for physicians, dentists and veterinarians.

(a) The State Board has the express power to determine the number of permits to manufacturers, wholesalers and rectifiers and to whom they may be issued.

(b) The County Board has the express power to determine the number of permits to retailers in the County outside the City and to whom they may be issued and the City Board has the same power as to permits within the City.

No person, corporation or partnership can engage in the business of manufacturing, rectifying, transporting or selling alcoholic beverages without a permit. Adequate penalties are provided for doing business without a permit.

Intoxicating liquors may be sold by a manufacturer to a permitted wholesaler, druggist, or rectifier.

A permitted druggist may sell one pint to any person more than twenty-one years of age, not an habitual drunkard, nor having been convicted of any offense directly or indirectly attributable to the use of intoxicating beverages, for medicinal purposes without a prescription, but only one pint in seven days; on a physician's prescription without limit as to the amount. A physician may prescribe a case of liquor if the patient by reason of location or other handicap is unable to obtain such liquor as needed.

Dentists may administer it for medicinal purposes and veterinarians may use it in the treatment of dumb animals.

4. It is proposed to levy the following permit fees and license taxes in order that the State may obtain adequate revenue from the liquor traffic.

(a) Permit fee for brewer or wine merchant to sell in original packages direct to consumers $25.00 per month.

(b) For the privilege of manufacturing beer or wine $500.00 per annum.

(c) For the privilege of selling beer or wine at wholesale, $100.00 per annum.

(d) For the privilege of selling beer or wine not to be consumed on the premises, $25.00 per annum, within the limits of a city and $15.00 per annum outside the limits of a city.

(e) For the privilege of selling beer or wine to be consumed on the premises where sold in a restaurant, hotel, beer garden, or club, $100.00 per annum in cities of over 100,000 population and $50.00 per annum in other places.

(f) For the privilege of selling beer or wine upon a railroad car or vessel to be consumed on the premises, $10.00 per annum for each railroad car, and $25.00 per annum for each vessel.

(g) For the privilege of manufacturing, storing or transporting spirituous liquors for mechanical, scientific, sacramental or medicinal purposes $500.00 per annum.

(h) For the privilege of manufacturing, storing or transporting vinous liquors for mechanical, sacramental or medicinal purposes, $250.00 per annum.

(i) For the privilege of purifying, mixing, blending, or flavoring spirituous liquors for mechanical, scientific, sacramental or medicinal purposes, $250.00 per annum.

(j) For the privilege of selling at wholesale, spirituous, vinous or blended liquors for mechanical, scientific, sacramental or medicinal purposes, $200.00 per annum.

(k) For the privilege of selling at retail, spirituous, vinous or blended liquors for mechanical, scientific, sacramental or medicinal purposes, $100.00 per annum.

5. In addition to the permit fees above enumerated it is proposed:

(a) To levy a license fee of $1.25 per barrel of thirty-one gallons or fraction thereof on beer manufactured or sold within the state.

(b) On wine, two cents per gallon or fraction thereof.

(c) On distilled spirits stored in a bonded warehouse, two cents per proof gallon on the storage thereof and ten cents per proof gallon when withdrawn from storage.

(d) On purifying, mixing, blending, flavoring or rectifying, three cents per proof gallon or fraction thereof.

The Bill offered with this report doubtless has many imperfections but in our opinion it is in compliance with, and not in defiance of, the State Constitution.

~~We believe the Bill offered by the majority ignores the Constitution and amounts to a nullification thereof.~~

Numerous States have before and since the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, appointed commissions to report to Governors and Legislatures, methods for regulating and controlling the liquor traffic. This report and the Bill attached conform to the recommendations of most of the Committees making reports on the subject.

When the people of this Commonwealth vote on the repeal of the Seventh Amendment, they should be advised as to what is to be done about the liquor traffic in the event of repeal and this report and the appended Bill are submitted as the permanent policy of the State following repeal, the only amendments necessary in that event, being the broadening of the field within which ardent spirits could be sold for beverage purposes.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ELWOOD HAMILTON,
SELDEN Y. TRIMBLE.

The Committee's Bill.

AN ACT to regulate and tax the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor and to repeal the Act of March 22nd., 1922, being Chapter 33 of the Acts of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky of the year 1922, entitled "AN ACT to prohibit the manufacture, sale, transportation, possession or other disposition of spirituous, vinous malt or intoxicating liquors, except for sacramental, medicinal, scientific or mechanical purposes", etc. and all other laws or parts of laws insofar as they are in conflict with the provisions hereof.

PREAMBLE.

The General Assembly is confronted with a condition and not a theory; the Seventh Amendment to the state constitution is being violated constantly and with impunity; the people in the November, 1933, election voted to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment by a majority of more than 150,000; the Seventh Amendment cannot be repealed until the November election of 1935; the vote on the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment indicates a widespread public demand for intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes that will insist upon being supplied; the General Assembly is cognizant of the failure of the Rash-Gullion Act; from its very inception this act was not enforced in the urban centers of the state and if indictments were brought, juries would not convict; further, it provided no revenue from the liquor traffic but, on the contrary, has imposed an additional burden on the taxpayers; the General Assembly realizes that the present legal control of the liquor traffic is hopelessly inadequate and affords an unsurpassed opportunity for the bootlegger; a continuation of the legal status quo can only breed further disrespect for law and a further demoralization of a large number of our citizens; the General Assembly, in formulating "appropriate legislation" under the Seventh Amendment, is cognizant of the factual background and of the financial plight of the Commonwealth and intends to establish a system of stricter control of the liquor traffic which at the same time shall become an integral part of a more adequate system of taxation; the General Assembly appreciates the fact that the Seventh Amendment is not self-executing and that it contains no penalties, that, since the source of its legislative power over the liquor traffic is not found in the Seventh Amendment, but in the reserved police power of the State, the General Assembly is not legally obligated to exercise that power to the fullest extent which the amendment might authorize, and that, under the police power, it may select and choose the evils that it thinks most desirable to penalize. Bearing in mind the factual background, it is the deliberate judgment of the General Assembly that this Act constitutes the most effective legislation under the emergency conditions confronting the State.

Now, Therefore, Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

ARTICLE I: DEFINITIONS.

PART V.

SECTION I. The following restrictions upon and regulation of the manufacture, possession or sale of malt liquors and vinous liquors for beverage or sacramental purposes and the manufacture, possession or sale of spirituous liquors for mechanical, scientific or medicinal purposes are hereby established for the reason that the manufacture, possession or sale of said liquors for said purposes may be conducive to the manufacture, possession, distribution or sale of unauthorized alcoholic beverages and therefore the provisions of this Act are enacted as a safeguard to temperance and in order to promote obedience to the law and more effectively to prevent the unlawful manufacture and sale of beverages now prohibited by the Constitution of this State.

It is hereby declared to be the public policy of the State that the number of permits in this State to traffic in malt, vinous or spirituous liquors should be restricted and the State Board empowered to determine whether public convenience and advantage will be promoted by issuing such permits, by increasing or decreasing the number thereof and in order to further carry out the policy hereinbefore declared, the number of such permits shall be restricted. For such purposes, the State Board is hereby given discretion to determine the number of permits, the location thereof and the persons to whom they shall be issued subject to judicial review as hereinafter provided.

It is the purpose of this Act to permit the sale of malt or vinous liquors for beverage purposes, subject to the provisions thereof, of the highest alcoholic content permitted under the Constitution of this State and if the court or courts of this State should adjudge that the alcoholic content of the liquors referred to herein as fixed under this Act is in excess of that permitted under the Constitution, then this Act shall be construed as to such liquors as to only authorize the manufacture and sale within the limits of the Constitution.

It is declared by the Legislature to be the public policy of this State that beer, containing not more than four per cent of alcohol by weight is non-intoxicating and wine containing not more than fourteen per cent of alcohol by weight is non-intoxicating in fact.

SECTION III. (1) Any person may apply to the State Board for a permit to manufacture beer and wine within this State for sale. Such application shall be in writing and verified, and shall set forth in detail such information concerning the applicant for said permit and the premises to be used therefor as the State Board shall require. Said application shall be accompanied by a certified check, or cash, or postal money order for the amount required by this Act for such permit. If the State Board shall deny the application it shall return the fee to the applicant. If the State Board shall grant the application, it shall issue a permit in such form as shall be determined by rules. Such permit shall contain a description of the premises; and in form and in substance shall be a permit to the person therein specifically designated to manufacture beer or wine in the premises therein specifically permitted. The State Board shall have absolute discretion as to the number of such permits and as to the location of the premises permitted.

(2) No manufacturer, after this Act becomes effective, shall sell or contract to sell any beer or wine to any wholesaler or any owner who is not duly permitted under this Act to sell beer or wine at wholesale or retail at the time of such contract and sale.

(3) A permitted manufacturer may under such rules as may be adopted by the State Board, sell at retail beer or wine in bulk by the keg, cask or barrel for consumption, and not for re-sale, at a barbecue, picnic, outing or other similar out-door gathering at which more than fifty individuals are assembled.

(4) A permitted manufacturer may apply to the State Board for a permit to sell beer or wine at retail for consumption on the premises in a beer garden or restaurant owned by him and conducted and operated by him in or adjacent to the brewery or winery for which he is permitted. All of the provisions of this Act relative to permits to sell beer or wine at retail for consumption on the premises shall so far as is practicable, apply thereto.

(5) Except as specifically provided in this Act, no manufacturer of wine or beer shall sell any of either at retail.

SECTION IV. (1) The State Board may, in its discretion, and upon such terms and conditions as it may, by rule, prescribe, issue to a permitted brewer or wine merchant, upon application therefor, a permit authorizing him to sell beer or wine at retail to be delivered by such brewer or wine merchant to a person for consumption in his home.

(2) Such application shall be in writing and verified, and shall set forth in detail such information concerning the applicant, the necessity for the permit and the probable extent of its use and such other information as the Board shall by rules require. Such application shall be accompanied by a certified check, or cash, or postal money order for the amount required by this section of such permit. If the Board shall deny the application, it shall return the fee to the applicant. If the Board shall grant the application, it shall issue a permit in such form as shall be determined by rules to be adopted by the Board.

(3) Such a permit and the exercise of the privilege given thereunder may be subjected by the Board to such requirements and restrictions as it may deem necessary to impose by rules.

(4) For the exercise of the privilege granted by such permit, there is assessed a fee to be paid by the person enjoying the same, in addition to the regular fee for a brewer's permit or a wine merchant's permit provided for in this Act, the sum of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars per month.

SECTION V. (1) A person other than a manufacturer of beer or wine may apply to the State Board for a permit to sell beer or wine at wholesale. Such application shall be in writing and shall set forth in detail such information concerning the applicant for said permit and the premises to be permitted as the State Board may require and shall be accompanied by a certified check, or cash, or postal money order for the amount required by this Act for such permit. If the State Board shall deny the application it shall return the fee to the applicant. If the State Board shall grant the application, it shall issue a permit in such form as shall be determined by the rules of such board. Such permits shall contain a description of the premises permitted; and in form and in substance shall be a permit to the person therein specifically designated to sell beer or wine at wholesale in the premises therein specifically permitted.

A person holding a manufacturer's permit need not obtain a wholesaler's permit in order to sell at wholesale beer or wine manufactured by him. No person, after this Act becomes effective, other than a person holding a manufacturer's permit selling his own beer or wine, shall sell beer or wine at wholesale in this State without a permit issued pursuant to this section. A wholesaler's permit shall authorize the holder thereof to sell beer or wine at retail to be delivered by such wholesaler to a person for consumption in his home. No wholesaler after this Act becomes effective shall sell or agree to sell any beer or wine to an owner who is not duly permitted to sell at retail at the time of such agreement and sale.

In the event that the State Board issues such permit it shall forward it to the applicant and shall notify the County Board or City Board in such form as the State Board may by rule prescribe. In the event that the State Board refuses to issue such permit it shall state and file in its principal office its reasons therefor and shall return such application to the applicant together with the fee therefor and shall notify the County or City Board of its action in such form as the State Board may by rule prescribe.

(3) If the County or City Board shall disapprove such application for a permit it shall indorse thereupon its disapproval thereof together with a statement of its reasons therefor, signed in the same manner as provided in subdivision two of this section, and shall notify the applicant of such action. Such applicant may thereupon apply to the State Board for a review of such action of the County or City Board, in a manner to be prescribed by rules of the State Board. A hearing, upon notice to the County or City Board and to the applicant, shall thereupon be held by the State Board or by one of its members in a manner to be prescribed in its rules; and on such hearing proof may be taken by oral testimony or by affidavit relative thereto. After such hearing, if the State Board concur in the disapproval by the County or City Board, it shall indorse such application accordingly and shall return it, together with the fee therefor to the applicant, and shall send notice to the County or City Board of its action in such form as the State Board may by rule prescribe. If the State Board does not concur in the disapproval by the County or City Board it may nevertheless grant such application and issue such permit in the manner prescribed in subdivision two of this section.

(4) In the event that the County or City Board is not unanimous in its recommendation as to such application, each member of such Board shall indorse thereon his approval or disapproval of such application as the case may be, together with his reasons therefor. If the applicant requests it in a manner to be prescribed by rules of the State Board, the State Board shall thereupon proceed in the same manner as provided in subdivision three of this section in a case where an application for a permit has been disapproved by the County or City Board and forwarded to the State Board.

(5) No such permit shall be issued, however, to any person for any premises other than a grocery store or drug store.

(6) Such permit shall in form and substance be a permit to the person specifically designated therein to sell beer or wine in the premises specifically permitted at retail not to be consumed upon the premises; and shall describe in sufficient detail the premises permitted. It shall authorize the sale of beer or wine in bottles or in cases or in any other receptacle, at retail, to be consumed off the premises permitted.

(7) No person shall after this Act becomes effective sell any beer or wine at retail to be consumed off the premises unless a permit to do so has been issued to him pursuant to this section; provided, however, that a sheriff, marshal or constable may sell such beer or wine on a sale or an execution issued pursuant to law.

(5) It shall be unlawful for any person to sell beer or wine after this Act becomes effective to be consumed on the premises unless such person shall be permitted to sell beer or wine as provided in this Act.

(6) No beer or wine shall be sold to be consumed at a bar, counter, or other similar contrivance except under such rules as the State Board may prescribe.

(7) Nothing in this Act contained, however, shall be construed to require that any food be sold or purchased with beer or wine.

If the Board shall deny the application, it shall return the fee to the applicant. If the Board shall grant the application, it shall issue a permit in such form as shall be determined by rules. Such permit shall contain a description of the premises to be used by the applicant and in form and in substance shall be a permit to the person therein specifically designated to manufacture, store, sell or transport spirituous or vinous liquors in or from the premises therein specifical-
